1 · WELCOME TO COUNTRY

Reconnection — across time, across people.

You are entering Turraburra: story held in stone and starlight, still being lived today.

[Full-bleed image — fire under stars, or sunrise over the escarpment. No CTA, scroll cue only.]

2 · WONDER

The oldest sunrise you will ever stand under.

Deep time isn't a figure of speech here. The stars above the story wall are the same ones this Country has watched for longer than most of what humans call history.

3 · TRUTH

What's etched in stone doesn't forget.

The largest rock art site in central Queensland is here — over 15,000 markings across 160 metres of wall. Nobody has dated it. The wasp nests that could be still sitting over the engravings, waiting for someone to ask.

4 · BELONGING

Some people never left. Everyone else can find their way back.

For the Iningai Nation, this has always been Country. For everyone else, belonging is something every person carries — even the ones who've forgotten where.

5 • LIVING WORK

Caring for Country, in practice.

Fire-stick farming, carbon farming, spring restoration — work the Iningai Rangers do every week, by hand, not heritage kept behind glass.

6 • THE INVITATION

Every journey begins differently — we welcome you to walk alongside us.

7 • THE WAY FORWARD

A way forward, for whoever needs one.

What's been rebuilt here — Country, culture, a way of working — is offered as one example, not the only one. Wherever you're standing, there's a way back to your own Country too.

Ancient traditions walking together with contemporary visions.
